

Remote Island

- Cocos Islands, West of Australia
- The two main islands that make up the Cocos Islands, Home and West, were struggling with an increasing population and an overflowing septic system. Heavy machinery was not available on the island and a Flovac vacuum system was found easy to install and also easy to maintain, vitally important given the distance to the mainland if a fault or overflow occurred.
- Maintenance has been easy with sand not affecting the system at all.
